NEW SOLDIER SEX SIGNALS: MILITARY

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Sex Signals is a two-person interactive training that aligns the mission of sexual assault prevention with military core values. The program's strategic use of humor, audience interaction, branch-specific culture, and real-life military-based scenarios is research-supported, and builds equity with audiences in order to create learning opportunities surrounding the topic of sexual assault.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- The definition of rape is sex without consent.
- Consent must be active (e.g., verbal) and ongoing for it to be present, and cannot be obtained from someone who is incapacitated (by alcohol, drugs, etc.) and one actively taking advantage of this incapacitation is committing sexual assault.
- The sexual initiator is responsible for being certain that consent is present.
- Both men and women can be victims of sexual assault, regardless of gender identity or sexual orientation.
- Sexual assault is much more than a crime; it is a moral issue and thus preventing it through bystander intervention and supporting those who have been victimized, aligns with Army core values.

95%

of respondents commented that they felt more confident in their understanding of "consent" following the presentation
